

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 20, 1858.

INCREASE OF THE ARMY.

It is said, that in Rome, and indeed throughout the Pope's dominions, the great majority of the people are divided into priests and beggars, the former living in idleness, and luxuriating upon the produce of that land, which of right belongs to the latter, and which nature intended should furnish them with all the comforts of life. This unnatural state of things has not been the work of a day or a year, but is the result of the policy pursued for centuries, by an unprincipled and unscrupulous hierarchy operating with judicial craft upon the superstitions of the ignorant and therefore credulous masses. History tells us, it was not always so, but that in former times, the Italians were an intelligent, a brave and generous race of men, who maintained a lofty and proud a position among the nations of the earth as the Anglo-Saxons of the present day. What then is the cause of this great change in the character of a people once so cultivated and distinguished, now so degraded and despised? In ancient times the title of a Roman citizen was a bulwark of defence, a shield of protection throughout the world; now however it is at once associated with the idea of assassins, mountebanks, beggars, and scoundrels.

To say that the people had grown ripe and then become rotten is the mere recital of a notorious fact. It is the cause we look for—the cause of this melancholy spectacle—a whole people once great, powerful, and the terror of the world, now become insignificant, powerless, and contemptible. To our mind the main cause is apparent, and may be found in a carelessness and neglect of that sound and truthful maxim—the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. Had the Italian people paid a just regard to this vital maxim, instead of being a nation of slaves, they might even to the present day, have maintained their former exalted position. What then is the lesson taught us, and to be held forever in remembrance? Is it not to profit by the example—to exercise eternal vigilance in the preservation of our liberties, and to stand the tocsin, whenever those liberties are threatened. And when we would ask, has there been, since the days of the revolution more or greater cause for ringing the loudest peals of alarm, than now exists. Are not our rulers at Washington, in hostile array against the liberties of the people? Do they not boldly array their designs at the point of the bayonets?

Are they not at this moment using the army to crush the people of Kansas, and are they not calling for more men to enlarge and strengthen that Army—not to protect us from foreign foes, but to trample upon the dearest rights of fellow citizens. Will Congress betray their country and give up their constituents the people, to the tender mercies of such rulers, by increasing the army and thus strengthen the arms of the people's oppressors? We trust not, but look to the future with anxiety. Did not Washington in his parting legacy to his countrymen, warn them against the dangers of standing Armies? Have not the same warnings been reiterated by those true friends of the people—the patriots who in the "times which tried men's souls," stood firm and steadfast in defence of popular rights? Why then should we enlarge an army already too large—an army not needed for my purpose of defence, but to be used as the blind instruments of tyrants and oppressors. If men cannot be roused by a sense of danger to their liberties, there is one means left which generally proves effectual. We mean the danger to their persons. What has proved the greatest burden to people in the shape of taxes? The Army and the Navy. Where do ideas of Aristocracy spring up and flourish so naturally, as in the Army and the Navy. Where will the instruments be found by ambitious and unprincipled men to convert one another, but in the Army and Navy? when together have consumed, or been the means of consuming by far the larger part of the two thousand millions, which from the organization of the Government, has been paid into the Treasury of the United States.

The Havelocks are of Danish descent, and were for many generations settled at Great Grimsby, in Lincolnshire. The ancient seal of the Corporation of that borough bears the figure of a Danish warrior, armed, holding in his hands a long spear, surmounted by a shield, on which is written the word "Havelock." The story runs that "Havelock," or "Haflock," was the last child of a Norwegian king, and was brought up in Grimsby, and became a valiant warrior under his rough tutelage.

All the Congregational churches in Lowell are filled with their choirs, and the organists are in full force. As the services are conducted in the English language, the people are not greatly interested in the services, but the organists are.

The funeral of W. C. L. was held on Saturday afternoon, at the First Congregational Church, in Providence. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Clarke, of Providence, and the organist was Mr. L. C. Clarke.

B. R. C. G. the most popular of Charleston, died last Saturday.

LOCAL NEWS.

We take pleasure in calling attention to the advertisement of the Messrs. Hazards in another column. These gentlemen have carried on the furniture business on a large scale for several years, and are now prepared, having introduced still greater facilities, to increase their manufactures to any desirable extent. In point of fashion, finish and workmanship, their furniture is equal to few and excelled by none, even in or out of this city, and as their prices are extremely low we cannot doubt but that their business which is already large will increase proportionate to their facilities. We shall at some future time make mention of some of the beautiful furniture which we noticed in their ware room on a recent visit to it.

LITERARY.

"ART MANUFACTURES ILLUSTRATED," is the title of an elegant volume, in green and gold laid upon our table by our friend and townsmen George C. Mason.

No one perhaps in the country is better adapted, by taste, talent or experience to discourse upon Art, and certainly no one has yet produced a book in all respects so useful and reliable as this, or of such general value, to persons of artistic taste. With a natural taste for Art—a youth possessed in constant familiarity with the pencil, and European cultivation at a ripe age, few men have had the advantages possessed by Mr. Mason, and still fewer the industry and tact to profit by such experience to the same extent, familiar with the pen, as the pencil, he has written several very acceptable works, and filled the editorial chair of our venerable contemporary the "Mercury," with ability and acceptability to his host of friends. The Book before us, his last and most considerable work, is destined to add materially to his reputation as a writer, and win him many friends among that constantly increasing host—the lovers of true Art, both at home, and abroad.

The sentiment expressed in the preface, pervades the whole book. "We should do most to encourage the beautiful, for the useful encourages itself." There are 150 illustrations, exquisitely engraved by our best American wood engravers, which of themelves form a valuable collection. We believe that every family in our land ought to be instructed in matters of art, ought to possess literary knowledge relating to the manufacture of such objects of use and ornament as they meet with in their daily experience. How many of our friends, persons of excellent judgment in ordinary matters, furnish their houses with various objects which they fondly believe to be pictorially beautiful, and carry home in trunks their iron or zinc castings bought for a "fine bronze, extremely cheap" and not much more than its weight for old iron, to any person of correct taste, furnish their houses with gaudy stuffs and staring gilt vases, which stamp them vulgar to a person of refinement, at a glance. To such, a book like this is of great value, instructing them in the principles of art, and the value of materials—and it is equally valuable to those of good taste and knowledge in such matters, for reference, and for its artistic illustrations. It ought to be on every enter table in the city, and its trifling cost, only two dollars, places it within the reach of all.

We trust the author may reap the rich reward of reputation, and profit, that his taste and labor entitle him to. We clip the following notice from the Boston Courier, which is first rate authority in such matters:

George C. Mason, an artist of Newport, R. I., has been for a long period engaged in the study of Art in its application to Manufactures, with especial reference to metals and that branch of elegant workmanship so famous at Sheffield and Manchester. However indignant the mass of our people may be to it, it is difficult as an abstract element, to appreciate it when combined with the Useful; and the daily increasing demand for the artistic in household economy, makes any information regarding it a boon. Mr. Mason has prepared a most valuable practical manual on this subject; the process and the principles of artistic manufacture, and especially of metallic ware, are given with fulness and precision; the details are of general interest; the facts of practical value; the volume is a substantial one and amply illustrated.

In his preface the author gives a list of his authorities, and, besides condensing a vast amount of scattered information, he has, by means of his own artistic culture admirably described and advocated the highest applications of Art to Manufactures. To the iron, silver, and goldsmiths, to the mince and milliner, to the drapery and art, to every student and lover of beauty in art, and science in domestic economy, to the curious, the imaginative and the practical, this book will prove most useful and instructive. It is published in an appropriate case, and with numerous plates, by

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not east beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast republic," and that it will be bought, read and admired to the satisfaction of both author and publisher, for bringing out such a book as this involves no little expense of time and money.

old and silver, porcelain, glass, terracotta, &c., each chapter containing a vast amount of information, and each particular subject having its own choice illustrations. In the concluding chapters on ornament, he has endeavored to impress upon the public mind the advantage of studying how best to combine the ornamental with the useful, to have everything so harmonious that each utensil, each article of furniture, whether in common use or to be "kept for show" should not offend the taste in any way. In short that utility should not cast beauty in the shade. To this end he would have schools of design established wherever it is possible. Why is it that our own State, foremost in manufactures, has done ac- qually nothing to encourage skill or originality in the designs for her wares and fabrics? Ought not this reproach to be wiped away? We sincerely hope that Mr. Mason's book, if it does no other good, will arouse public attention to the want of such schools throughout "this vast

OTTOLIA as performed by eight of Root's Ballet Troupe.

Fairy Tales, Grand Waltz, by F. W. Smith.

Serenade Polka, by Wm. Regelein.

The Diner Bell Polka.

Polka Mazurka de Faust, by Carl Bergman.

Polka Boheme de Faust, by Carl Bergman.

Polka Diabolique de Faust, by Carl Bergman.

Sous-sous.—Mark the Vesper Hymn is Stealing, music by Thomas Ryan.

Long to see thy smile Mother, by J. W. Turner.

Mar of the Valley, by Geo. F. Root, composer of Hazel Dell.

Come over the Hills to the Sea Love, by F. W. Smith.

WARD'S Book & Music store.

Feb. 19.

PIANO-FORTES TO LET.

TWO Octave Pianos to let by the quarter or by the year. Also, two second hand Pianos for sale cheap for Cash, a good chance to make a bargain. Must be sold. Call soon at WARD'S BOOK & MUSIC STORE.

Feb. 19.

A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF RICH GLOSSY HAIR COMPLETELY PRESERVED TO THE GREATEST AGE

And who that is grey would not have it restored to former color? or bald, but would have the growth restored, or troubled with dandruff and itching but would have it removed, or troubled with scrofula, scald head, or other eruptions, but what would be cured, or with sick head ache, (neuralgia) but would be cured? It will also remove all plagues from the face and skin. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative will do all this. See circular and the following.

ANN Harbor, November 5, 1856.

PROF. Q. J. WOOD.—Dear Sir: I have heard much said of the wonderful effects of your Hair Restorative, but having seen so often advertised by quackery and quack nostrums, hair dyes, &c., I am disposed to place your Restorative in the same category with the thousand and one loudly trumpeted quack remedies, until I see you in Lawrence county some months since, when you gave me such assurance as induced the trial of your Restorative in my family—first by my good wife, whose hair had become very thin and entirely white, and before exhausting one of your large bottles, her hair was restored nearly to its original beautiful brown color, and had thickened and become beautiful and glossy, upon, and entirely over the head; and continues to use it, not simply because of its beautifying effects upon the hair, but because of its healthful influences upon the head and mind. Several of my family and friends are using your Restorative, with the happiest effects; therefore, my skepticism and doubts in reference to its character and value are entirely removed; and I can and do most cordially and confidently recommend its use by all who would have their hair restored from white or grey (by reason of sickness or age) to original color and beauty, and by all young persons who would have their hair beautiful and glossy.

Very truly and gratefully yours,

SOLONOM MANN.

FRIEND WOOD.—It was a long time after I saw you at Balsfield before I got the bottle of Restorative for which you gave me an order upon your agent in Detroit, and when I got it we concluded to try it on Mrs. Mann's hair, as the surest test of its power. It has done all that you assured me it would do; and others of my family and friends, having witnessed its effects, are now using and recommending its use to others as entitled to the highest consideration you claim for it.

Again, very respectfully and truly yours,

SOLONOM MANN.

CARLYLE, ILL., June 28, 1852. I have used Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effects. My hair was becoming, as I thought, prematurely gray, but by the use of his Restorative has resumed its original color, and I have no doubt, permanently so.

S. BRESSE, ex-Senator, U. S. O. J. WOOD & CO., Proprietors 312 Broadway, N. Y., (in the great N. Y. Wire Clothing Establishment) and 114 Market street, St. Louis, Mo., and sold by all Druggists.

16—IXW.

Maryland State Lotteries. F. FRANCE & CO., MANAGERS.

CAUTION NOTICE.

PERSONS living at a distance should be extremely cautious of whom they order Lottery Tickets or Certificates or Packages of Tickets. The country is flooded with bogus and swindling Lotteries. Every indolent is held out to get persons to invest money in them. Capital Prizes of from $24,000 to $40,000 head their schemes—with tickets at One Dollar, $100.00 Capital Prizes are offered, tickets $1. All such, in every instance, are frauds; and if money is sent to them for tickets, it is so much thrown away without the shadow of a chance of getting a prize. Beware of all Lotteries where the Capital Prize is unusually large in comparison to the price of tickets. In every instance where large prizes are offered for a small cost of tickets, pay it down as a certain fraud.

The Kentucky State Lottery for the benefit of the S. C. College, under our management, is the only Lottery in the United States which is legally drawn by the Maryland Drawings; all other Lotteries which purport to be decided by the Maryland Drawings are frauds.

THE MARYLAND STATE LOTTERIES. Purchase in the Maryland State Lotteries, there you are sure of being right. And in ordering in the Maryland Lotteries you are sure of fair and honest drawings.

One thing looks to, and that is, if you order from any licensed vendor in Baltimore, do not receive any but Managers' Tickets and Managers' Printed Certificates of Packages. The Managers' Certificates have the numbers printed, and have the lithographed signature of F. FRANCE & CO.

NOTES.—1. All the Managers' Tickets and Managers' Printed Certificates of Packages are found at the following places:

F. FRANCE & CO.,

167 M. St., N. E., Washington, D. C.

100 BROAD ST., NEW YORK.

100 BROAD ST., BOSTON.

100 BROAD ST., PHILADELPHIA.

100 BROAD ST., BALTIMORE.

100 BROAD ST., NEW ORLEANS.

100 BROAD ST., ST. LOUIS.

100 BROAD ST., CHICAGO.

100 BROAD ST., NEW YORK.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A VINE assortment of shell and Buffalo Lock combs, together with shell, Buffalo, and India rubber hair pins, just received direct from the manufacturer, at B. H. TIDDALE'S, 112 Thames-st.

PROPOSALS FOR STONE.

STREET COMMISSIONER'S Office, 31

NEWPORT, Feb. 13th, 1859.

SEALED proposals will be received at this Office until Saturday, Feb. 20th, for furnishing from 350 to 450 cords of rough stone for repairs on lower part of Thames-street.

By order of the City Council.

W. H. COY, Street Commr.

NOTICE.

Mayor's Office,

Newport, Feb. 12, 1859.

THE City Marshal will cause all carriages and other vehicles to be removed from Thames street, from Howard street to the Island Cemetery, on Monday, the 15th inst., between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock, p. m., during the moving of the procession at the funeral of the late Captain William V. Taylor, U. S. Navy.

W. H. CHANSON.

Feb. 13th.

COURT OF PROBATE.

City of Newport, Feb. 8, 1859.

ESTATE OF ELIZABETH B. PERRY.

THOMAS T. CARR, Executor of the last Will and Testament of Elizabeth B. Perry, late of Newport, single woman, deceased, presents his second account on her estate for allowance, which account contains a credit for proceeds of this sale of the real estate of said Elizabeth B. Perry; and the same is received, and is referred to a Court of Probate, to be held at the Council Chamber, in the City Hall, Newport, on Monday the 1st day of March next, at 10 o'clock A. M., for consideration, and it is ordered that notice thereof be published for fourteen days, once a week, in the Newport Daily News.

H. H. HOWLAND, Prob. Ck.

MESSINA ORANGES—Very handsome and in perfect order, for sale low by the box or retail at YOUNG'S, 97 Thames-st.

Waterman's Specific Plaster.

ELIMINATED for the cure of Fever Sores, and as a sure remedy for the Ague in the Breast, if seasonably applied. Also for in the Jaws and Teeth, or any part of the body. It is also an excellent remedy for Rheumatism, Colds, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, King's Evil, Corns, Boils on the Feet, Chilblains, Scrofulous Sores, Bites and Injuries of all descriptions—Pains in the Side, Breast, Shoulders, &c., occasioned by Induration of the Liver and Spleen, and for Induration of the Bowels, Lungs, or any other part of the system. Also, in cases of Debility—Pains and Weakness of the Heart, Palpitation of the Heart, &c., at R. J. TAYLOR'S, 104 Thames-st.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

Dr. DUCOSTE's Golden Periodical Pill for Females. Perfectly harmless, yet wonderfully and powerfully curative in correcting, regulating, and removing all obstruction from whatever cause.

All medical men know, as well as many others, that no female can enjoy good health, unless he is regular, and whenever an obstruction takes place, whether from exposure, cold, or any other cause, the general health begins immediately to decline, and the want of such a remedy has been the cause of so many complications among young females. Headache, Pain in the Side, Palpitation of the Heart, Loathing of Food, and Disturbed Sleep, do most always arise from the interruption of Nature; and whenever that is the case, the Pill will invariably remedy all these evils; and may always be used successfully as a preventive.

Price $1 per box. To be sold at 104 Thames-street, corner Church-street, and at 12 Washington-street, opposite the State House. Orders for the trade to be sent will be supplied at lower rates, and our prices. Ladies by sending $1 to YOUNG'S CO., Box 81, New-York, or post office, can have the Pill sent identically by mail to any part of the city or country.

2d

CLOTHING Under Price—A large assortment of winter clothing now opening at 104 Thames-street, which was purchased for less than half price, and I purpose to divide the benefit with those who favor me with an early call. Do not forget to come with Rhode Island money or some other reward.

66 J. H. COZZENS.

FLOUR! FLOUR! FLOUR! FLOUR!

100 lbs. of extra State flour for $6.25 per lb. 100 lbs. of Ohio and Iowa extra, for $5. per lb. 60 lbs. double extra Georgia for $5. per lb. State flour for $5.00. Also Wittenberg, P. R. Biddle, and Manhattan, for sale at 104 Thames-street.

COAL UNDER COVER.

THE subscriber is prepared to deliver from his store a very complete assortment of coal clean and dry, and on very favorable terms, among them are the following—

Miner's Lyric Valley,

Hammond Ven Red Ash,

Peek Mountain,

Providence Ven.

Also Wood, consisting of Hickory Oak, Virgin Pine, uncommonly good, and Eastern Pine. Sawed wood and knotted wood constantly on hand and sawed to order as desired.

CHAS. WILLIAMS.

What opposite from Providence-st.

ABLE Kid Gloves—A fine assortment of colors and superior quality, for 50 cents per pair, at PHILLIPS', 176 Thames-street.

SHELLBARKS, a prime lot, just received

2d

S. R. WILSON'S, for the Holliday, received at

N. PHILLIPS' New York Cheap Store, 176

Thames-st.

OH! Children—Toys Accordion, Harmonicas, flags, &c., at City Music Store by T. W. WILSON.

2d

THE Golden Year, Gen. for 1859; The Lady's Almanac, Illustrated by Billings.

Price 25cts.—For sale at TILLEY'S, 2d

SOCKS—A large assortment of Country

Silk socks, selling from 25 to 60 cents.

J. H. COZZENS, 102 Thames-st.

SCOTCH Cashmere, very desirable hand some patterns, very fine and heavy and full suits, just opened at

2d

J. & N. H. GOLDFORD'S.

FOR MEN & BOYS.

WINTER CLOTHING—A very large stock, just purchased for less than value, and will be sold very low for cash.

VERGONNAH SOU'S. Underclothes, a large variety of styles, qualities. Also Vest,

Waist, Hand-caps, and Fingering Goods.

Cash and to be collected to purchase a good overcoat for less than you could ever get one, at 102 Thames-st.

66 J. H. COZZENS.

CLARET WINES—Sample Cases of Claret Wines in Store, consisting of the following brands: Chateau Margaux 1848,

Chateau Latour, Chateau Léoville,

Lafite, Margaux 1851, Mouton, St. Julien, &c.

Entre, Medoc, &c.

Orders for any of the above forwarded to well known importing houses, in New York, to quantities, at NEUTON BROS.

GRAHAM Magazine for January, for sale at TILLEY'S.

104 S. Ladies Book and Peterson's

Magazine for January, for sale at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,

1 weekly newspaper, &c., at

104 TILLEY'S.

RENEW your subscriptions for Magazines,